Museum of Fine Arts, a unit of the Museum of New Mexico

Focusing on the areas of photography and works on paper; paintings, sculpture and furniture from the 20th century; and contemporary art. There is particular emphasis on work produced in or related to New Mexico. Noted for paintings by artists who were active in the early days of the Taos and Santa Fe art communities. Exhibits this summer are of contemporary glass and an exploration of using art material in different ways.

The museum offers art walking tours of Santa Fe April - November (weather permitting). Guided by one of the docents, the tours highlight the art and architectural history of downtown Santa Fe. Tours leave at 10:00 a.m. Mondays from the museum gift shop steps. Cost: $10 per person

Wheelwright Museum of the American Indian

We will visit this museum and will be introduced to The Case Trading Post. Maintains growing, world-renowned collections that document Navajo art and culture from 1850 to the present. It also presents changing exhibitions on traditional and contemporary Navajo and other Native American arts.

The Case Trading Post, in the museum, built to resemble a turn-of-the-century Navajo Reservation trading post, is more than a gift shop. It's a place where your questions about Southwest Native American art and artists are answered by friendly people with knowledge gained from years of first-hand experience.
